Stalker Threat Assessment

INITIAL CONTACT PHASE

This document can be used as a starting point in the initial phase of assessing a potential threat. This should NOT limit other sources of information that may be invaluable in assessing a threat.

Date: _____ Person Reporting Threat: _____

Date of Threat: _____ Time: _____

Intended Target(s) or Victim(s): _____

Exact wording and nature of threat: _____

Step One:

TYPES OF THREAT
(is this a threat?)

DIRECT THREAT

Identifies a specific act against a specific target and is delivered in a straightforward, clear, and explicit manner. "I'm going to place a bomb in your boss' house."

INDIRECT THREAT

Tends to be vague, unclear, or ambiguous. The plan, intended victim(s), motivation, and other aspects of the threat are masked or equivocal. "If I wanted to, I could kill everyone in this office." Violence is implied but tentatively, "if I wanted to" and suggests a violent act COULD occur, not that it WILL occur.

VEILED THREAT

Strongly implies but does not explicitly threaten violence. "We would be better off without you around anymore." clearly hits at the possible violent act, but leaves it to the potential victim to interpret the message and give a definite meaning.

CONDITIONAL THREAT

Warns that a violent act will happen unless certain demands or terms are met. "If you don't pay me a million dollars, I'm going to shoot up the store."

Step Two:

LEVELS OF THREAT

This step can be used alone if the person making threat is unknown.

PRESUMPTIVE INDICATORS

LOW LEVEL

Threat is vague and indirect.

Information within the threat is inconsistent, implausible or lacks detail.

Threat lacks realism.

Content suggests person is unlikely to carry it out.

MED LEVEL

Threat is more direct and more Concrete than low level threat.

Wording suggest person has given some thought to how the act would be carried out.

General indication of a possible place and time (but not a detailed plan).

Strong indication the person has taken preparatory steps, although there may be some veiled reference or ambiguous or inconclusive evidence pointing to that possibility, an allusion to a book or movie that shows the planning of a violent act, or a vague, general statement about the availability of weapons.

Specific statement seeking to convey that the threat is not empty.
“I’m serious!” or “I really mean this!”

HIGH LEVEL

Direct, specific, and plausible.

Threat suggests concrete steps have been taken toward carrying it out, for example, statements indicating that the person has acquired or practiced with a weapon or has had the victim under surveillance.

“At 8:00am tomorrow morning I will shoot James. That’s when he leaves his house. I have a 9mm. Believe me, I know what I am doing. I am sick and tired of what he is doing.”
